Teaching for Transformation: Summer Education Institute (SEI) is an annual 3-day faculty development program, taking place every June.

SEI brings together educators, clinicians, administrators, leaders, and scholars interested in the theory and practice of transformative education and critical pedagogies. SEI participants strive to prepare health professions learners for the humanistic, social-relational aspects of health care practice with a commitment to equity, diversity, and inclusion. SEI uses a combination of dialogic, narrative, and arts-based approaches.
